Justine Landau specializes in classical Persian literature and poetics. An alumna of the École Normale Supérieure de Fontenay/Saint-Cloud, she holds an Agrégation in French Literature. She studied medieval French literature before moving on to Iranian Studies, at the INALCO and at the Sorbonne Nouvelle, in Paris, where she worked as a teaching assistant (2003-2007). Her PhD on early Persian literary theory entitled, “Aux origines de la poétique persane. Enjeux littéraires et linguistiques des traités de poétique persans du XIII<sup>e</sup> siècle (VII<sup>e</sup> siècle de l’Hégire)” [The Origins of Persian Poetics: A Literary and Linguistic Analysis of 7th/13th Century Persian Treatises on Poetics] is to be submitted in June 2012 at the Sorbonne Nouvelle (advisor: Professor Yann Richard). Justine Landau joined the Institute of Iranian Studies in Vienna in July 2010.
