

With the Support of the Jahangir and Eleanor Amuzegar Chair in Iranian Studies

SOME THOUGHTS ON THE TRANSLATION OF SPANISH LITERATURE TO PERSIAN

A Lecture by

Leyla Rouhi
Williams College

Wednesday, May 8, 2013

2:00 PM

365 Humanities Building

Leyla Rouhi holds the John T and John B McCoy chair in Romance Languages at Williams College. Her teaching covers a wide range of language and literature courses while her research is largely — though by no means exclusively — centered on medieval and early modern Iberia. Translation is one of Rouhi's areas of expertise, and her interest in contemporary Persian literature is closely connected to issues of translation. Her most recent publications include studies on Miguel de Cervantes and Islam as well as on translations of Cervantes into Persian.